We, the 1961 ECHO staff members, take pleasure in presenting to you a yearbook of memories, designed to give you a wider outlook on the whole world by showing how Spring Arbor's banner has been unfurled around the globe. We hope that your 1961 ECHO will prove to be a "ticket" to happiness by way of reminiscence in future years.
Jungle drums, cobras, and wild animals made life in a Gold Coast village an exciting adventure for Putu Prince, John Komai. Born on November 11, 1936, as the first son of an African chieftain, John began preparing throughout his younger years for the time when he would rule over the Putu tribe in succession to his father.

But in 1949 ways began opening for John to obtain an education: first at a mission school in Penoke, Liberia, where he found Christ as his personal Saviour, and then at LeToursneaux where he met Ed and Judy Jones, a Free Methodist couple from East Peoria, Illinois. As the school year closed, the Jones' believed John should come back to America with them and attend Spring Arbor High School.

With apprehensions and fears, and yet with a faith in God, John came to the United States in 1955, to continue toward the medical missionary career to which he felt called. During his years in Spring Arbor, his experiences, and Christian service have encompassed a great variety of tasks and activities. Photography Club, Ministerial, Foreign Missions Fellowship, Student Council, Speech, Oratorio, and A Cappella Choir have claimed him as an asset at different times and John has enriched each of their programs by giving diligently of his efforts. John has also had many speaking and preaching engagements, since he has gone out on his own on weekends, giving his energies to Christian service. But, perhaps, his most admirable trait is his spiritual leadership. Not only have his positions as class chaplain, and Religious Activities Chairman made him a blessing to others, but more so has been his daily, consistent Christian witness.

For all the efforts he has put forth for Spring Arbor, for all the blessing and inspiration he has given to us, and for the warm friendship he shares with all, we dedicate this 1961 ECHO to John Kalikojoe Komai.

In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths—

Proverbs 3:6
From age to age, the peoples of the world have influenced each other and have affected each other’s modes of culture and ways of living. In the past, as preachers, doctors, and teachers carried the message of Christianity into foreign lands, they have been able to change the lives of people and set up new standards. We wish to show through the 1961 ECHO how the alumni who have gone out as missionaries have unfurled Spring Arbor’s banner and caused it to bless the whole world. To do so, we will take you on a global whirlwind tour via our DC-8 airliner and your imagination.

Flight 61, PAN-AM jetclipper to Johannesburg, Cairo, Paris, Rome, Karachi, Madras, and around the world, now boarding at gate 9. All aboard please!

Africa—the land of elephants and lions, of safaris and camel caravans, and of drumbeats and mysticism... the land of graphic contrasts: the burning, arid Sahara and the lush Nile Valley; the steaming Congo jungles, and the frigid Kenya mountain peaks; the ancient streets of Cairo and the modern thoroughfares of Johannesburg. Though men from Rameses II to Dr. Albert Schweitzer have greatly influenced Africa, it is known as the 'dark continent'; yet, paradoxically, it was once the center of learning. People came from all parts of the ancient world to Thebes and Alexandria in quest of knowledge, and laid down the basis for our education today. The faculty and administration of Spring Arbor College carry on the tradition of the past in imparting to us religious and intellectual instruction. Similarly, missionaries like Gerald and Marlene (Parsons) Bates, (52-'53), of Ruandi-Urundi, are taking educational and spiritual light back to this land of darkness.
board of trustees and president strive for progress

No one picture can capture the many expressions of our President, Roderick Smith. As an administrator and executive, as a parent and family man, and as a Christian layman, President Smith is constantly involved in a busy schedule of activities, but even so he remains personally interested in each student. We are proud of his record as head of this college and do esteem him highly.

Although not directly in contact with the student body, the Board of Trustees controls a facet of our life, as it retains the highest authority in regard to the policies and growth of Spring Arbor College.

On October 4, 1960, the Board of Trustees held a memorial service in honor of Bishop Emeritus, M.D. Ormonston, who was a former member of the Board.

We wish to join with the Board in paying tribute to this great man of God for his Christian witness and his life of service.

From the times of the earliest religious monastic orders, the feudal social structure, and the medieval guilds, Europe has been the founding place for many organizations. Whether in an age-old castle in Spain, or along the aspen-shaded banks of the Rhine, on the slopes of a snow-crested Alpine mountain, or perhaps in a quiet French chateau; whether at the Trevi Fountain in Rome, or on a heathered hillside in Scotland, or on the silver sands of Capri, there has been a constant surging of activities that reflects the energetic drives of the Europeans. And on our campus also there is a steady throbbing of "busyness" which is as varied as is all of Europe. Government, culture, education, and religion each play a part in this pulsating rhythm of campus life.

One of our own students, Miss Gayle Moran, flew to Belfast, Ireland in November to be a part of the "Conquest for Christ" crusade team, which was sponsored by the General Conference FMY. Gayle with other American, Canadian, and Irish young people gave out the Christian message during street meetings, "pubraids," and evening rallies, and saw many people come under the influence of the Gospel.
new patterns in student government

We of Spring Arbor College have given our full support to the aggressive program of the Student Association entitled "OPERATION ACTION!" Through its three main divisions, Enlargement, Influence, and Outreach, the student Council is especially effective in recommending rule revisions, expanding activity-opportunities, and broadening its influence on the general collegiate picture. The chartering of new clubs, writing of a Dorm Constitution, installation of a special Welcoming committee, creation of the Christian Service Opportunities program, and membership in the American Association of Evangelical Students are partial evidence of the ambition, spirit, and responsibility of our student council leaders. Student Association prexy Mark Mason and veep Dale Cryderman were the dynamics behind the all-encompassing program which proved itself to be so effective and successful in this year of real "action."
As one tangible result of "Operation Action," several new clubs have been organized on our campus, including Los Amigos Españoles, the Student Education Association, and Phi Alpha Kappa.

Phi Alpha Kappa, the fine arts club, was energetic during its first year, providing news bulletins at the dinner tables, playing carols over the P.A. system at Christmas-time, constructing an abstract Christmas sculpture, attending art museums and concerts, and sponsoring art displays. The goals are to raise the standard of culture on campus, to help others appreciate fine arts more, and to provide mutual enjoyment of art, music, literature, and drama.

For students who are interested in sunny Spain and Latin America, their romantic language and their colorful customs and cultures, Los Amigos Españoles offers an opportunity for increasing one's appreciation for Spanish.

The Student Education Association helps its members to decide on which field of teaching they will enter and informs them of the requirements and opportunities in each field. In order to join the National Student Education Association this year, the club sold boxes of candy to raise the needed money for dues in the organization. Each future teacher agreed that they had benefited through joining the association.
learning combined in many clubs

The amateur shutter-bugs rallied to revive this popular club after its absence of one year from the campus. Foremost in its purposes and activities are studying historical photography and learning to take and develop better pictures. Seasonal contests were planned to honor the best snapshots, and learning sessions were conducted by their advisor, Mr. Johnson.

Under the leadership of Gary Wyma, the "sharpshooters" of the Rod and Gun club banded together to promote sportsmanship and safety in hunting, and to preserve beneficial wildlife. Their planned events included an exhibition on safe handling of guns, an organized hunt for small game, and trap-shooting in Jackson.

Striving to interest more students in scientific careers, the Science club planned activities in both the physical and biological science areas. The individual and group projects, lectures, and field trips made their program very profitable and enjoyable.

E. Armstead, D. Morris, N. Federson, G. Wyma, President; D. May, Secretary-Treasurer; R. Hacker, L. Drake, G. French, C. Clark.
The debate team encourages rational thinking

The debate squad, though numbering only four, entered in many debates, including away from campus debates in Albion, Petoskey, and Flint. Under the direction of Miss Maddox, on December 3, they were host to ten other junior colleges for a tournament.

resolved: that the United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all citizens.
To encourage its members to live fuller Christian lives and to stimulate healthy attitudes toward the discipline are the main purposes of the Ministerial group. Canvassing upon request of churches along with "filling pulpits" keep the future ministers active.

Working intensely on Spring Arbor's missionary convention and helping in the Lansing Spanish mission each Sunday night helped stimulate the FMFers missionary zeal. Through their weekly meetings and projects, they encouraged more awareness of missions on campus.

To prepare students for effective lay work, Christos offers an experience in conducting services, in canvassing, and in other practical methods of Christian service. Besides canvassing in Benton Harbor and elsewhere, the club sent a carload of young people to Rice Creek each Sunday to work in the Sunday School.

are part of the campus vocal program

Under the direction of Mr. Chapman, the field service teams visited many of the churches throughout Michigan, Ohio and northern Indiana in an effort to build good-will and gain support for the college. These students enjoyed special opportunities of Christian service.

The 1960 presentation of Handel's MESSIAH by the College Oratorio Society was a climax of twelve weeks of practice for a group of one hundred and twenty persons this year. Under the direction of Miss Mary Ruth Crown, their rendition of this master-piece was given on Sunday afternoon, December 11. Each singer as well as each one in the audience received a blessing from the inspired music. Solists were Mrs. Eileen Bovee, soprano; Mrs. Dorothy Lehman, contralto; Mr. Ralph Messner, tenor; and Mr. Elliot Nordgren, bass. Mr. Gilbert Roller, pianist, and Mr. Edgar Crowle, organist, accompanied.

hard work and fun

A mid strains of "I Met the Master Face to Face" and "Amen!" the Spring Arbor A Cappella choir completed its thirty-second season. Its forty-one members presented nearly thirty performances including one over the Jackson television station. The renditions ranged from spirituals to sacred chorale numbers and hymns. During its annual spring tour, the choir visited eleven Michigan churches and several high-schools. A separate weekend was spent in Ohio. As a result of the hard work of each choir member and the indispensable direction of Miss Crown, the choir enjoyed another highly rewarding year.

Many, many hours were spent in hard practice before appearing publicly, but the results were well worth the effort.

The timeless cultures of Asia are depicted in the curvacious motions of the graceful temple dancers of Thailand and Burma, in the serpentine Great Wall of China, and in the majestic Taj Mahal of India. The bizarre oriental marketplace crowded with Persian rugs, teakwood, ivory, spices, and wool from Kashmir; hunch-backed coolies bent over planting rice shoots in the flooded paddies; and the devout offering milk to the sacred cow, reflect the diversity of life from Bombay to Tokyo. Elephants, tigers, water-buffalos, monkeys, bronze buddhas, Hindu priests, and Shinto shrines are each a part of the silk-screen mural of the Orient. As the teeming millions living in Calcutta, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Rangoon, Singapore, and Shanghai represent a mixture of peoples, so also do the students of Spring Arbor represent a variety of backgrounds, since they come from many different states.

It was in Japan that one of Spring Arbor's students, Mr. Dale Cryderman, Jr., lived while his parents ministered to the people there in 1954-55. Presently, Jim and Leone (Tjepkema) Taylor ('47-'48, '49-'50) are missionaries on the island of Taiwan, just a few miles from the Communist controlled mainland of Red China.
last senior special

The end of an era in Spring Arbor's history came when the members of the last high school senior class graduated in June. By their achievements in the last four years have left an impression on the school's record and upon their fellow-students.

Their weekly prayer meetings were a blessing to each class member and were a help in keeping the spiritual fires glowing on campus.

Their junior play, "Christmas at Home," thrilled the audience and indicated the effort they put into it. Their creative ability was expressed in their home-coming displays which won first prize for two consecutive years.

From their small, but mighty class was carved the varsity and junior varsity basketball teams which showed good sportsmanship as they defeated many rivals on the basketball floor.

For these and many other achievements in their high school years, we salute the last senior class and wish them success, happiness, and God's best for their lives.

The enchantment of the South Pacific Islands is coconut palms stirring in the trade breezes, cloudless blue skies, and breakers sweeping across coral reefs into quiet lagoons. It is the delightful, yet majestic, beauty of Samoa; the hilarious fun of Tahiti; the brilliance of Fiji; the brooding savagery of Espiritu; it is the ports of call in New Guinea, the Philippines, and the Marianas; and the whispering tropic nights in Hawaii. This is nature's playland -- countless islands bulging with things to do: spear fishing, swimming, yachting, canoeing, mountain climbing, surf boarding, and just plain loafing; feasts to enjoy, guitars to strum, and delicate orchids to pick. Just as the South Pacific is an infinite variety of experiences, we at Spring Arbor College likewise find ourselves participating in a medley of activities.

The variety of the South Pacific is also seen in its people; thrifty Chinese, lovely bronzed Polynesians, tidy Englishmen, and extremely primitive native groups. Taking the Gospel to the nationals of the Philippines are missionaries John and Ruby Schlosser with their four children, Lora Jean, Tommy, Johnny, and Donny. In 1958-59, Lora Jean attended Spring Arbor High School while her parents were on furlough.
The first week of school for the freshmen consisted of a full and exciting agenda: days filled with lectures, tests, and refreshment breaks, and evenings with social events, including devotions, skits and a weiner roast at Minards Mill, and a get-acquainted party in the gym. The week came to a close with the arrival of the sophomores and the all-school reception held in the mall, which was highlighted by special songs, a hilarious skit, and refreshments. Students and faculty alike felt confused trying to remember names after going through the traditional hand-shaking line.

After registration and the beginning of classes, students soon got into the routine of college life.

Two hundred and twenty college students staged a mass attack of the Yankee Springs Recreation Area of September 21, 1960. During the two day period of relaxation, the students and faculty played football, horse-shoes, volleyball, and softball; took hikes along the lake shore and across the hills to the Devil's Soup Bowl; and enjoyed fun and fellowship during the evenings with skits, devotions, and the campfire. Everyone enjoyed the food and the recreation, but the most unforgettable experience of retreat were the times of Christian fellowship as the students were getting acquainted.

fall retreat: hikes, new friends, sports, antics

school year begins with many activities
winter banquet
a fantasy in frost

The greatly enjoyed winter All School banquet, was held on the Hillsdale College campus, December 7, 1960. Upon entering the sparkling wonderland of winter through the igloo entrance, the couples discovered pine boughs, stars, snowmen, bells, and winter scenes decorating the room. A large twenty-pointed star covered with ice blue angel hair was suspended from the ceiling, and attracted much attention. Candelight and soft organ music created the pleasant atmosphere for the Swiss steak dinner which was topped off with delicious French Silk Chocolate pie. The unique program booklets, the snowball nutcups, and the twenty pointed centerpiece stars further carried out the theme "Fantasy in Frost." After Toastmaster Rev. Vincent Spencer and Mrs. Vivian Welch entertained the diners, Mr. Carl Bihl of YFCI brought a challenging spiritual talk.

missionaries tell of world needs

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD IS JESUS, symbolized by a giant lighthouse complete with revolving beacon, was the theme for this year's missionary convention held in November. With a background of rocks, lower warning lights, and a colorful, stage-wide map of the continents of the world, the theme song, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," was very much in harmony. The missionary speakers, Miss Geneve Sayre, Miss Persis Phelps, and Reverend Norman Cook told us much about Formosa, India, and Egypt and presented the challenge of missions once again. Over $11,000 was pledged to mission work, but the greater climax came when nearly one hundred young people dedicated themselves to the work of the Lord.

Much credit must be given to Jeri Rensberry, Kay McCollon, Brenda Jones, Nancy Sergent, Jack Staats, Pam Underhill, Marrianne Heslip, Dick Switzer, Libby Palmer, Faye Atkinson, Vern Bennett, Mary Fry, Sue Marshall, Russ Eldred, and many others for the splendid job that was done on the decorations and the program.
prayer groups

A time set aside from the affairs of life is necessary to walk close to the Lord. Dorm prayer groups have given each student the opportunity to take a few moments from studying to meet in small groups for a time of spiritual refreshment, sharing each others burdens and rejoicing together for answered prayer. Victories have been won during these brief prayer sessions and the spiritual fire has been kept kindled by them.

revivals

The fall evangelistic campaign featured Rev. George Delamarter as the special speaker, who placed emphasis on effective witnessing; and in the spring, Bishop Kendal ministered to us in a series of services.

To be most remembered was the wonderful workings of the Holy Spirit as He was manifested in the hearts of many during a spontaneous revival on campus.

Student vesper were spiritual oasis in the middle of testimony services each week. Singspirations, services in advisors' homes, individual class prayer meetings and combined services with the community church were times of inspiration and blessing to everyone.

calling groups

Every Sunday afternoon, several small groups faithfully called in seven rest homes in the area. The students held devotional services and distributed Sunday School papers to the invalids and the aged and were a blessing to those whom they contacted.

chapel

The daily chapel periods consisted of a great variety of programs this year. Each of the religious clubs were responsible for one service each semester and the week of February 27-March 3, the services were dedicated to the theme of “Consistent Christian Living.” Guest speakers were regularly scheduled, and the Student Association presented programs on “Operation Action.” Special programs by the A Cappella, Red Harper, and Dr. George Carothers added variety.
The second semester brought with it many changes. As usual there were some students who didn't return; but there were also many new students who came to the campus at the beginning of the semester.

Changes also took place within the student council. At the resignation of Vice President Dale Cryderman for health reasons, Jerry Marlow was elected to fill the position. In another special election, Lynn Smith became the new Director of Religious activities, to fill John Komai's place.

Spring Arborites enjoyed a series of Lyceum programs this year which was both enlightening and entertaining. The first presentation was a concert by the world famous Don Cossack Chorus. Probably the most popular Lyceum program was the appearance of Edwin L. Baron nationally known hypnotist. Baron aptly demonstrated his skill with the help of several willing subjects chosen from the audience. Also presented were two travelogs, "Land of Early Autumn" and "On Top of the World" plus two instrumental concerts: Weekley and Alganbright, piano duettists; and the University of Michigan Concert Ensemble.

South America is a continent full of spectacular vistas, strange facts, and proud, friendly people. It is the home of the mighty Amazon and the Falls of Iguaçu; matted jungles and horizonless pampas; and rancheros swathed in serapes. It is the startling beauty and immensity of the Andean range; the gentle charm of Lima; the sleepy villages of Mexico; the Inca ruins at Machu Picchu; and the 600 annual earthquakes of Chile. Its cities are varied: Rio de Janeiro with its famed Sugar Loaf mountain; cosmopolitan Buenos Aires; and the daring new attempt, ultra-modern Brasilia. For the culture conscious this varietal land offers elegant cathedrals, opera houses, and universities. For the athlete there are stunning beaches, ski slopes in the Andes, cock fights, bull fights, and soccer games. Presently the South Americans are showing an increased consciousness of sports of all kinds from other lands. Likewise, we at Spring Arbor College have an expanding interest in our athletic program.

South America claims two large statues of Christ with outstretched arms: in Rio de Janeiro, and in the Andes mountains. These statues symbolize God’s love for all, and teaching the people of Brazil about God’s love are missionaries Clancy and Doris (Towns) Thompson ('48-'50, '50-'51) and their sons Bryan and baby Mark Edward (not pictured).
The final year of basketball at SAHS can be looked upon as our most successful year. Starting with little hope of winning any games but with desire, drive, and determination we once more had a dynamic team. Many of the games were fast and exciting, particularly the game with Tekonsha in which a victory was won with only three SA men left on the floor. A hard working team, the persistence of Coach McDonald, plus an energetic group of cheerleaders made a winning combination for our high school once again.

In the first tournament game, SAHS scored a basket in the final seconds to come out on top of Concord, 57 - 56. However, they bowed out to Cement City the following night.
Selecting the starting five was no easy job for Coach Jackson this year, for each man on the team put forth his utmost to bring victory. Although injuries plagued the team constantly, and the victories were not as numerous as we had hoped, the fellows displayed their teamwork and drive in each game until the final buzzer sounded.

The highlight of the season was the last game of the year with Grace Bible College. The support of cheerleaders and students and the strenuous work of the team brought a tremendous victory of 74-70 in exciting overtime play.
harriers deserve much praise for their hard work

The 1960 team continued the good work of past years' teams with the only blot on the season's record being two losses to a strong Flint J.C. team. In the past nine years, the S.A. teams have won 35 of 38 meets with junior colleges, and 27 of 34 with senior colleges. Included in the 35 J.C. wins was a winning streak of 29 consecutive decisions for a national junior college record. Coach Ken Beardslee has a major rebuilding task ahead with seven of his eleven men graduating. Congratulations to these seven for their dedication to our cross country team.

Mack's determination and effort bring him success.

The start of the National Junior College cross country meet, held November 12, 1960, at Jackson J.C.

intramural program expanded

Congratulations to the winners in football, basketball, and ping pong.

“Yea team, fight fight, fight,” is the sound that comes from the members of the Pep Club. Organized to build enthusiasm for the games, and to boost school spirit, the club members worked and yelled to meet their objectives.
Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!

This is the voice of America, calling to the unwanted of the world, asking them to come and be a part of our beautiful country.

Our America is a land of color and motion. It could be represented in the panoramic view of New York's skyline, or the magnificent vista of the Colorado River cutting its way through the Grand Canyon. It could be the up and down city of San Francisco or the great plains of the Midwest crowned by the Great Lakes surrounding Michigan; it might be the rocky coast of Maine, or the luxurious plantations in Louisiana, or the great stands of redwoods in Oregon.

However, America can not be pictured by just one or two of these sights but as a great mural of all of these, plus our way of life under a democratic government and a free way of living. This is why we are proud to call ourselves Americans. America - the land of the free and the home of the brave.

COME TO THE SNACK BAR!
OUR GRADUATES

The graduates march down the aisles.
We greet them with our sighs and smiles.
For there is daughter; there is son:
And each a perfect, shining one!
These are the children we have reared.
For whom we worked and prayed and feared.
Now, on the platform, there they stand—
the hope and strength of our dear land.
They calmly speak of their dreams;
their great and grand heart-warming schemes.
And yet we see, within their eyes,
the wisdom in which youth is wise.
For they have learned life’s “gives and takes”
and profited by our mistakes.
As we sit proudly watching there,
deep in our hearts we make this prayer:
“The good Lord shed His grace on you:
To, in your new estate, be true.
To keep your records clean and bright.
To fight life’s wrongs with truth and right.
To live a life that’s strong and good and help all men in brotherhood.”
