Dedicated Insights

As Spring Arbor College looks at its immediate needs and to the future, it cries for physical expansion. It is your task, Mr. Charles Williams, as Director of Development, to coordinate plans and goals to produce the adequate physical facilities. It is your task to intuitively present the program of our college to its friends and tap every possible resource for sufficient funds.

In the three and one-half years that you have held your position, your belief in Christian education and your sense of a divine mission have inspired a rededication of other lives to the serve.

Because your insight and thoughtful perception are determining Spring Arbor’s future, we dedicate the 1962 ECHO to you, Mr. Williams.

The coffee break was welcome after the strenuous task of cleaning up the campus for the homecoming weekend. Mr. Williams and Dr. McKeen are demonstrating the interest that Spring Arbor’s faculty take in the campus activities and the students.
Insights Into Spring Arbor College

Spring Arbor College is in a state of transition. She is bringing into focus the dreams and ideas of dedicated minds who have dared to venture into the realm of possibilities and conjectures and explore new concepts in Christian education. She is taking great strides of progress, not to keep up with advancements in the world of learning, but to forge ahead, to prove that thorough, Christ-centered education will develop mature Christian scholars who actively discharge the responsibilities of their modern society.

Insights are becoming realities as the college steps into her four year curriculum which has required prayerful planning and careful organization. An upgrading of the collegiate program thoroughly integrates the Christian philosophy with knowledge and opens the field of learning to the investigation of the individual student.

The faith and perception for the future of the college have come from the committed intellects of our President, administration, trustees, faculty, students, alumnae, and friends. Spring Arbor provides the limitless horizons of truth endowed with a "touch of immortality."
Familiar Insights

Not everything on campus is being changed. There are the everlasting class rocks on the front campus which are solidly entrenched in the hearts and minds of the students. These rocks are waiting for the last graduating sophomore class to leave their memorial on their weather-beaten bosoms.

There is the never-to-be-forgotten struggle of packing the cars on Friday afternoon as the students set out for home for the weekend. Leave room for my books! I just have to study this weekend!

An integral part of our campus this year was the dearly beloved, canine classmate, Samson. She could be expected to appear anytime, anywhere and she was a familiar sight curled up in a chair, perhaps in psychology class.

Physical Progress

Hopes and visions are rapidly being realized as the Decade of Development gains momentum. Under the Director of Development, Mr. Charles Williams, our campus is becoming more attractive and functional.

Last summer saw additions and improvements completed on our new athletic field.

As the new concept of a Christian liberal arts program places responsibility for learning on the student, the new library is designed to become the center of study. It will provide divisional learning centers for departmental study and is being located just north of the existing quad. Plans are scheduled for definite completion by the fall of 1963.

Also soon to materialize is the new Student Center as well as a new physics laboratory and new dormitory accommodations. A modern dining hall will be incorporated in the student center.

To see accomplished this extensive program of expansion calls for boldness in planning and promotion, along with consecration to the divine mission of Christian education.
Before-School Fellowship

If the limits of time are added to the lack of opportunity, the dilemma of having proper leadership is quite evident. Spring Arbor has tried to reduce this problem by initiating a Student Leaders' retreat held before school opens in the fall. The purposes of this conference are to help the student to get to know the general purposes and goals of the college and the principles of effective leadership. There were panel discussions and group committees were organized to discuss problems and possible solutions. The individual teams gave original skits on college life. Social hours, coffee breaks, and recreation provided the needed relaxation for the group. Volleyball in the pouring rain and swimming in the rather early hours of the morning were fun for all. The retreat left many happy memories, but its greatest value was that early in the year, it provided capable students for positions of responsibility and encouraged them to make leadership an important part of their education.

College Retreat—Fun, Friends, Fellowship

The entire college, students and faculty alike, staged a mass exodus to Yankee Springs on the fourth of October for the annual all-college retreat. Two days were packed full of activities and fun. The students and teachers played football, volleyball, "squareball," and horseshoes. Everyone took the traditional hike over to the Devil's Soup Bowl, and trekked down and up its steep sides. The evenings were full of skits, a devotional given by Rev. Dunckel, and a campfire service of prayer and testimonies held on the shore of the lake. Everyone had a wonderful time, but the most memorable times of retreat where the times of Christian fellowship had with one another while both students and faculty were getting to know each other.

The First Days of School

Getting acquainted amid pan-banging and hand shaking.

For the freshmen, the first days of school were full but exciting. The usual lectures and tests of orientation were interrupted by coffee breaks, and evening social events. A combination skit night and wiener roast was held out at Crystabelle Lake, a get-acquainted game night full of fun and interesting skits in the gym, and an all-college prayer meeting in the church. The end of the first week found the sophomores arriving on campus. The annual college-community reception was held Saturday night in the campus mall, highlighted by skits depicting the aspects of life in Spring Arbor. The coffee hours held in the dorms were rounds of getting acquainted and hand shaking—and pan banging! Registration and the first day of classes found all the students and faculty settling down to the routine of college life.

College-Community Reception

The annual College-Community Reception was held in the campus mall at the end of the first week of school. For the freshmen, it was a time of shaking hands and confusion of trying to remember all the names and faces that flashed by them. Skits were presented by students and faculty that showed the many phases of life here in Spring Arbor. An ensemble furnished special music for the program. Of rather special interest were our "charming" cheerleaders who did very well considering their handicap. The students had another treat in the form of a semi-formal banquet in the school dining hall. The meal progressed very quickly as tables of students got to know the others around them. All these functions played a major part in the all-important process of students, faculty, and community becoming acquainted with one another.
These are Realities

The "Echo" of 1961-62 is a pictorial presentation of names, faces and events which have highlighted the college year. It is not a static publication of momentary value, but a book of action, interaction and reaction. These phases spell out the purposes of Spring Arbor College. It is not enough that a large number of individuals be gathered together for a period of nine months. There must be action or movement directed toward a worth-while goal.

At Spring Arbor College, the direction of this movement is clear. Every force is focused upon the active development of individuals who exhibit the quality of integrity in their personal, intellectual and spiritual life. But beyond directed action, there is the interaction among the faculty and students which welds a collection of individuals into a campus community where "we" become as important as "I." This ESPRIT DE CORPS is the defining difference of the Christian college. It is a community of interacting minds and spirits by which the students and the faculty outthink and outlive a secular and humanistic society. Finally, then, Spring Arbor College has the purpose of reaction, though not in a backward and venomous sense. The reaction of the Christian college is more of a response to the needs and demands of the world beyond. At the same time that there is the criticism of the values of secular, group-conforming society, there is also the responsibility on the part of the students of the Christian college to participate in that society as individuals who exemplify the values of a practical spiritual life.

David L. McKenna, President

The progress being made is the clearing of the site of our future library. David L. McKenna as our president steers the course of development and guides the unfolding of a new era of Christian education for Spring Arbor College. Through his understanding and insight each student has become a vital part of Spring Arbor's growth.

The Noise You Hear Is PROGRESS!

Cabinet And Trustees Govern Our College

The function and regulation of the college is due to the hard work and sacrifices by the Board of Trustees. They are the owners and governing body of the college. Composed of nineteen members plus the President, the Board of Trustees is chosen from three constituencies: the Alumni Association, the Trustees in office, and from the different conferences. The Board of Trustees gives the college work, wealth, and wisdom. All three of these phases have been shown through their devotion to God and their concern and desire to see Spring Arbor College succeed.
Senior Learners

The heart of the college lies in its faculty which has the responsibility of communicating knowledge to the student through the classroom lectures. The teaching body of the college is what composes the faculty. They are said to be the senior learners in the community of scholars.

The cooks at Spring Arbor are loved and appreciated by each student because of their ability to serve delicious meals. They include Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. Wilcox, and Mrs. Dunckle under the direction of Mrs. Jessie Stimson.

The student work program at Spring Arbor supplies many students with jobs. Shown is Norm Amstutz keeping our halls clean.

Among the various departments of the college, the staff contributes much to campus life. They are workers together with God performing indispensable tasks. The staff consists of secretaries, maintenance help, Dean of Women, doctor, nurse, and the cook. Each member of the staff has a definite mission, and this is to glorify the Lord through their work.

The custodians—Mr. Carlisle, Mr. Henderson, and Mr. Force under the supervision of Mr. Avery Henderson—are kept busy with repair work and maintenance.
The dynamic Student Association program entitled "CRUSADE FOR ADVANCEMENT," dedicated student leadership, and a highly enthusiastic student body have made possible a thrilling year of progress in student government. Through its four main areas of endeavor, Variety, Influence, Outreach, and Design, the Student Council under the direction of Prexy Burton Jones and Veep Dick Gilroy has provided leadership in planning enjoyable activities, introducing opportunities for Christian service, increasing the effectiveness of student government, and broadening its influence on the general collegiate scene. The planning of a Student Leader's Conference, the production of a series of radio programs entitled "More Than Conquerors," the introduction of the first Homecoming Queen, the creation of a Student Council News Bureau, and the planning of Victory Crusades are but resultant tokens of the ambition and drive possessed by our student leaders.
Beth Gallup, Editor

BETH! STAN! these names were uttered many times throughout the year by the Echo staff. With Beth and Stan's leadership, and Mr. Gibbs' sound advice the staff was able to produce the book you are now holding in your hand. It took long hours and hard work to produce for you a more collegiate Echo for you to recall your 1961-'62 year at Spring Arbor.
Cheerleaders Elected

In an assembly held Friday, October 27, four Spring Arbor College freshmen and two sophomores were chosen by the student body to serve as college varsity cheerleaders for the 1961-62 school year. At this time the RE-DIT staff planned to present the new student body with a "special thank you" to Miss Maddox, staff advisor since 1959, for her service as RE-DIT advisor after two terms as advisor to the Colchuck, the newly-formed Dramatics Club elected her as sponsor. "It is a special thank you to Miss Maddox for the work and advice which she has contributed."

Advisor Resigns From RE-DIT Staff

Miss Maddox, advisor since 1959, has been released from her duties as RE-DIT advisor after two years in the position. The Student Council named her to serve as advisor to the Colchuck, the newly-formed Dramatics Club elected her as sponsor. "It is a special thank you to Miss Maddox for the work and advice which she has contributed."

Faculty Open House Helps Students To Now Faculty Better

Friday, October 27, the students of Spring Arbor College divided in groups of three and four and visited sixteen different faculty homes. Many students who were absent the previous week attended this faculty open house. "It is a special thank you to Miss Maddox for the work and advice which she has contributed."

In other major action the board approved the recommendation of D. W. Jackson, professor, for the formation of the faculty Better Open House. The new faculty Better Open House will be held in the spring semester. "It is a special thank you to Miss Maddox for the work and advice which she has contributed."

Our S E A had a recruiting program for the students interested in teaching. We worked as a service club for the staff and the students of the school. This year we spent much time working with children in the schools. We profited much from this experience because it helped us to realize the potential satisfaction in teaching.

Outdoors Sportsmen Club

Music, Art, and Drama is the theme of our club. We try to increase our knowledge and create a greater appreciation of the arts. We plan, organize, and produce programs emphasizing the arts. This year we put on a school play in cooperation with the Student Association. We also held a Fine Arts Festival. We worked toward the acquisition and proper use of more and better equipment for the M A D Club.

Our outdoor club sponsored organized outdoor sports such as ice skating, hunting, fishing, and skiing. We tried to acquaint the student body better with the outdoor sports. Our sports also provided a way to blow off steam.

Science

We, the Science Club, have tried to promote a greater genuine interest in science throughout the student body. Compliments of Blessings of Science.

We are leaving.

Leaving the familiar scenes of Spring Arbor College where we have shared our lives for a year.

We have partaken of Spring Arbor's dedicated ins-sights and knowledge and we go now, leaving part of ourselves with her.

We will keep a vision of Spring Arbor unchanging within our remembering.

"So attend us, Father, as we go from narrowed path
To find our destined place within thy will to be,"
