

Echo

Fall 01

Editors' Blurbs

Not quite eight months ago, I agreed to be the ECHO editor my senior year. I didn't really know what I was getting into. But, after just a few months of some hardwork and quite a bit of hair-pulling, you've got yourself an ECHO. There are the mugshots, the photo collage pages, a student poll, a feature story and the obligatory first-name index. Be nice. Have fun.

-Kara (Editor)

I once worked with a guy who referred to his college days as some of the best years of his life. I hope we'll be able to look back at our time at Spring Arbor Univeristy and say the same.

Freshmen: If your first year in college is anything like mine, it'll be great. No matter how hard you try, you'll never be able to get it back. Savor it.

Sophomores: This year may be a little depressing because it's not everything last year was. Don't worry, though. Enjoy the friendships you have and don't let it get you down.

Juniors: I know this year can be tough. This is the time we really start to buckle down and realize college is more than half over. The "real world," as it's called, is getting close. The future won't slow down just because we will it to stay away. Revel in being a kid and take a break to go play outside.

Seniors: I can't really say much to you because I'm not there yet. Just remember, there's no reason to rush through this year. It won't be long until you'll be the one sitting at a desk talking about how your college days were the best years of your life.

-Jessie (Associate Editor)

Poll Results

On Wednesday, October 24, the ECHO staff conducted an informal poll during chapel time. 504 students filled out the short questionnaire. Not everyone answered every question, which explains the discrepancy in some of the numbers. Here are the results:

Pepsi or Coke?

49% chose Pepsi
41% chose Coke
1% said neither

There were also two votes for Jones Soda

Has the change to university status been positive or negative?

61% said positive
2% said negative
34% said there's been no change

When life isn't fair, you build character

by Jessie Thomas

Mom had two life philosophies she always used to silence my complaining while I was growing up. The first was "life isn't fair." To this day I cringe when someone claims that an event, person, or circumstance isn't fair. I've developed the sense that anyone worried about fair treatment is spoiled, immature or even worse.

Mom's other favorite phrase was repeated in my home as much if not more than the first. Pretty much any bad thing that happened was really somehow good for me because it would "build character." I'm sure by this time I have more character than anyone on earth. Quite honestly, after all the things I've gone through that supposedly were building character in my life, it should be oozing from my pores.

One of the scary things about growing up is how quickly we all start repeating what our parents have drilled into us over the years. Especially scary is how true they ring when we say them ourselves.

My mom isn't a fortuneteller. She didn't see this semester coming when I was six years old and learning that the world didn't revolve around me. She didn't know the whole student body at SAU was going to face the fact that life isn't fair. I'm sure she had no idea how many times we would have to deal with hard times that were actually perfect opportunities to build character. But we did. We each have had struggles this semester that we either had to face or run from.

You could call this the semester of disaster. It's really been quite a doozy. Five days into the school year our nation was attacked by terrorists.

Two days later, a roofer named Bob Strunk fell off Muffit's roof and is now paralyzed from the waist down. September 20 our friend and fellow classmate Amanda Hale was hit by a drunk driver and passed away the next day. Several students have experienced death in their families. Letters laced with anthrax are throwing the whole nation into a major panic. Toss in the colds, cases of the flu and basic yuckies plaguing students all over campus and top it all off with the crazy stress everyone is under. It would be very tempting to just hide in our rooms and never come out.

"We've gone through trials and overcome."

I think Christians are under spiritual attack. I believe Satan is out to get us. We are fighting some spiritual battles we may not even know about. The good news is we're on the winning team and we've been given the power to overcome and even learn from the trials we go through.

One of the benefits of being children of God is the ability we have to find God's perspective on our many trials and understand the purpose they serve. Since we all share children-of-God status, I invite you to join me in considering where we've been.

As we've already established, life isn't fair. This truth was evident when Amanda passed away. The timing of her death didn't make sense to us. Yet in the midst of our pain, we have learned to rejoice. Amanda's parents joined us in chapel a short time after the accident and encouraged us in our efforts to trust God. In the midst of these difficult times I think we've really learned how to do that.

This year we've also grown in our ability to love others outside of the SAU bubble. When Mr. Strunk fell from the roof of Muffitt, the Spring Arbor University community was called to unite in prayer and even show support through funding a gift certificate to Meijer for his family. We were given the opportunity to look past our own troubles and reach out to others in theirs.

One area we've really shined in this semester is our reaction to the national crisis. On September 11, students crowded into the Fireside Lounge to pray for our country. The next night, students joined Spring Arbor Free Methodist Church in a prayer vigil. Prayers have been lifted for victims, the president, America and our enemies.

In general, we haven't been too super spiritual about the sickness and stress part, but at least we've been attempting to approach most days with a smile.

I guess what I'm trying to say is, take heart. This has been a hard semester. I wouldn't want to live through it again. We've had to fight against some pretty rough stuff. We've taken some hard hits and at times we've fallen. But we've grown. We've learned to accept that life isn't fair. We've built character. We've gone through trials and overcome. Years from now we'll be able to look at this semester as one in which we truly learned. Someday we'll learn the hard times we've gone through were preparing us for the future. Then we'll pick up this Echo, remember this semester and smile.

Amanda Hale

20 year-old sophomore Amanda Hale passed away September 21, 2001 after a car accident the day before.

"Amanda was an amazing woman of God. I was encouraged by her every day. Her smile, her laughter...We had countless laughs. She was someone that lit up the room when she walked into it...She loved people, and she enjoyed watching a smile [on] anyone's face.

Her music was such an important part of her life. The hours we spent in the music center together are infinite in number. She was always practicing...We had the best times playing the piano together and our favorite phrase was always, 'We are instrumental majors, not vocal majors.'

I have learned so much about life through her death. I don't take a single day for granted...Although I miss Amanda every day, I know she would want us to continue to minister to people in the way she did. These are just some [of the] things that Amanda's life has taught me".
